

Caste System.

In India the caste system has been prevalent in the country since times immemorial. The discrimination on the grounds of caste is called Casteism.

Social structure of India is based upon the caste system. It has affected several aspects of Indian society for centuries.

Once upon a time it was only a distribution of work that identified people. Later on it became a curse, people who were unfortunately born in poor families who face many challenges in their life were treated even worse than animals.

They are given no opportunities to develop themselves. They remained poorest of the poor. No school would admit their children.

People in Society treated them as untouchables that time, But In some village it is still going on.

The upper & lower cast people fight among themselves because of castism.

We should change this type of thinking and should treat the other people equally. and should respect their caste and religion. and so, there will be no discrimination amongs people.
